Cel. Feller, of The New Let and authors or their product and articles ever permed, in regard to authors or their products, uses the following strong and beautiful language:

"ERNEST LINWOOD.

"Death darkens his eye, and unplumes his wing.
But the sweetest song is the last he sings."

"In the volume entitled "Ernest Linwood," just issued sweets & Co., of Boston, we have the dying sons of the elegatiful of the supplementary of the strong of sitted Mrs. Calculate Lee Haviz. Mournfully as a state sigh of an Adollan lyre, yet deep and oracular as been sigh of an Adollan lyre, yet deep and oracular as and rithed Mrs. CAROLINE LEE HASLE.

like the sigh of an Ariolian lyre, yet deep and oracular as the voice of many waters, it seems to have been poured forth while her soul floated down to the ocean of Rest. On almost ever page, we can trace the shadow of the death-angel, who hore he away when her song watered. Mysterious gleams from be meath the uplifting wall of Spirit-land startle us as we read. The book is a broadcast furewell—a lingering hand grasp from one we later the weight of the writer—wonderfully vivid an abandum, because wonderfully red.

THE COURTESIES OF WEDDED I. I FE.
By Mrs. Madeline Leslie.
First Edition of 3,000 copies ordered in advance of Publication.
Second Edition of 2,000 in Press.
This is a work of rare merit, designed for all who have been, are; or would be married. It is an able vinication of the Divice Institution of Marriage—not didactic, but descriptive—and most admirshly adapted to control the judgment and heart, to minipply and perpetuate the amenities and joys of wedded life. It delights those who have read it, either in manuscript or in sheets. Read what they say:
"A series of life-like pictures woven into a stery of no ordinary interest, simple and beautiful in style, true to nature in its seems and characters, which are drawn with the skill of an artist, most pure and elevated in its moral tone, and budding fair to be a great favorite with the public."

[Our Critic.
"It will delight our readers and shed new light on the time-honored institution of worriage."
[Forting and the moral tone worthy the highest praise."

"A narrative of facts most skillfully embellished, containing scenes of thrilling interest, conformed in style to the best standards, and most pure and saluracy in its social and moral infinence."

"It should be read by every husband and wife, and by all who expect to sustain such relation, to make them therein."

BOOK OF REFERENCE: ALL CLASSES OF PRACTICAL MECHANICS. Together with the ENGINEER'S FIELD BOOK By CHARLES HASLETT, Civil Engineer.

EDITED BY CHARLES W. HACKLEY, Professor of Mathematics in Columbia College, N. T. In one 12me, vol., containing 176 Diagrams and 520 pages, Sound in merceco, glit, pocket-book form, with tucks. Price

From The Scientific American.

"It has peculiar qualities of its own. Its general information is more varied and extensive than any other work of the kind. The author is a civil engineer of much experience, and this not his first literary appearance before the public; the editor is one of the most distinguished mathematicians in our country; and unitedly they have made a most valuable and reliable work."

try; and unitedly they have made a most valuable and reliable work."

The Book of Reference' is one of real value to all practical men, because the result entirely of the practical man's experience. A part of the work is written by Mr. Hasiert, a well known engineer; it will be found of great value in localing side tracks, turnouts, &c. More than all, we are glad to see a truly American book. We think this part of the book worth the price of the whole volume."

Prom The Merchants' and Mannifacturers' Journal.

"It is, we do not hesitate to state, the most comprehensive and reliable work of its class that has ever been officed to the industrial world; and we have the testimonials of some of the most eminent and accomplished engineers and others, to bear us out in our estimate of the intrinsic excellence of the work."

From The American Mining Chroniels.

"We have seldom seen a book that would bear more praise without exceeding the boundaries of truth, and cannot refrain from strougly advising all our mechanical and engineering readers not to neslect providing themselves with a copy. We really and truly do not know of anything desirable which could be suggested, that is not to be found in it."

From Colburn's Railroad Advocate.

"This book in a near pocket form, contains 514 pages in a thickness of five-slighths of an inch. Over 1,060 receipte are interspersed throughout the work. The Field Book forms about one-third of the whole work. Practical engineers, including those of the highest reputation, contain 17 recommending Mr. Hasilett's formulies to the profession.

"If it were possible to add anything to the facination which attracts so many fravelers to the banks of the Nile, this volume would do it."

"As a vivid delineator, it would be difficult to overmatch Mr. Taylor."

"He proceeds by the Nubian Deseri and the White Nile to Khartoun, penetrates to the populous Negro Kingdom of the Shillocks"—having reached a point of Central Africa beyond which modern explorers have hitherto failed to penetrate.

"Treading for the most part on unbackneyed ground, he has produced a volume as fresh and original as it is brilliant, and even when pleaning from old fields, sarprises us by the novelty of his deservations and discoveries."

"There is to romance to us quite equations of Bayard Tay y's books of travel. Fact under his wonderful pen is mor harming than Fiction." (Hartford Republican. A VISIT TO INDIA, CHINA AND JAPAN. IS Bayard sylor. With Frantispiece and Vignette engraved on steel and Travel Weiter."

"We find it useless, however, to search for passages of greater length that would afford any adequate conception of the instruction and delight promises by the worst, full, as it is, of adventure, incident and a rectore, woven together in a rich webod description."

"Commence where you will in this last book of his, and you will find yourself immediately interested, and will reluctantly leave the narrative."

[Boston Traveller.

In some respects it is the most valuable of the series, for with find yourself immensions in the tested, and with reluctantly leave the narrative."

In some respects it is the most valuable of the sories, for though less furnished with the poetic and the historical, it contains more of description and information concerning scence and people comparatively new."

"The fiscination surrounding the visions of India which from youth-time one has carried in his imagination loses more of the enchantment as he follows Mr. Taylor through his volume, while mysterious China and Japan, though disrobed of the valuable has surrounded them, are as inviting to en ionity as ever."

Not a page of this book but is replete with interest, not a page but reveals some curious fact, not a page but toward the some vivid description or humorous episade." a page but reveals some curious fact, not a page but glows we some vivid description or humorous episode."

A NATIONAL SYSTEM OF POLITICAL ECONOMY.

A NATIONAL SYSTEM OF POLITICAL ECONOMY.

A NATIONAL SYSTEM OF POLITICAL ECONOMY.

Translated from the German by G. A. MATILE, Doctor of the Givil Law, late Professor of Law at Neutchatel, Member of the American Philosophical Society, etc.

With a Preliminary Essay and Notes by STEPHEN COLWELL.

Complete in 1 vol. octarby, 437 pages. Price $2.

"The grand characteristic of List's system is nationality.

"Its editice is built apon the idea of nations as they are.

"Thus nationality is the rulingides of his book; but with his vigorous mind and clear intelligence he enlarges it until it comprehents every topic of human welfare.

"It is this very idea of nationality which leads him who has done so much for commercial liberty to the restrictive system. With him liberty is the end to which man must tend, but which cannot be reached at a bound, and should not be teached without carrying human weifare with it.
